

This new branch was designed in a modified craftsman style to reflect the local flavor in North Kingston. The main structure is 1½ stories tall with high transom windows and a clerestory cupola. Exterior features include combination cedar shingles, tapered columns, tongue and groove gable overhangs, and a stone base perimeter. A state-of-the-art drive-up facility, consisting of two pneumatic systems and an ATM, was also added to the otherwise traditional building. Interior lights highlight the clerestory windows while exterior in-ground lights illuminate the columns and draw attention from the street.
